Greetings:

It is my pleasure to welcome the new and returning administrators, faculty, staff and students to the 2013 Fall Faculty and Staff seminar at Jackson State University. This year promises to be an exciting year as we come together as a team working One Jackson State ensuring that we excel in every aspect of the university.

We are all at the right university. Jackson State University is Mississippi's urban university whose history is rich with outstanding world-class, dedicated faculty and staff to meet the needs of our inquisitive students. We enjoy a beautiful well appointed campus with modern facilities and green space to serve our current enrollment of roughly 9,000 diverse students from more than 50 foreign countries, various states across the nation, and nearly all of Mississippi's 83 counties. We promise to provide the academic opportunities to develop the knowledge and skills critical to success in this twenty-first century world.

Let's continue to work hard to ensure excellence in knowledge by integrating technology and innovations. As one, let's excel in our various positions as our outstanding world class faculty, dedicated staff and supportive administration. Let's all honor the JSU legacy of teaching in research and service.

Together, we will move forward developing minds, supporting students, using best practices, respecting our mission and respecting our core values. It takes all of us, faculty, staff, students, alumni and friends to realize the extraordinary impact teamwork and unity can have. JSU, as an educational entity, must strive to be one without factions because when the "people are one, nothing will be restrained for them, which they have imagined to do." Genesis 11:6.

Finally, Jackson State University can accomplish anything we set our minds to do because we will do it as "One Jackson State with a Higher Purpose, Higher Expectations and Higher Outcomes."

Sincerely,

Commissioner of Higher Education

August 15, 2013

Dear Jackson State University Faculty and Staff:

Thank you for your service to Jackson State University and its students! Your hard work and dedication help create One JSU with a Higher Purpose, Higher Expectations and Higher Outcomes.

As you know, the Board of Trustees recently passed a new performance-based allocation model. This reflects both a national trend and the Mississippi Legislature's emphasis on universities reaching productivity goals. The goals of the allocation model are to allocate the funds made available by the state in an equitable manner among all eight institutions and drive increases in post-secondary educational attainment for the state. All universities have been underfunded, so the Legislature provided additional monies for a hold harmless provision, the PERS increase and some repair and renovation.

Each of you has a role to play in helping recruit, retain and graduate Jackson State University students. Beyond the satisfaction of helping more students cross the finish line, you also have a benefit to gain: Increased funding for the university could have a direct impact on your department's budget.

Of course, the model was not developed to provide a mechanism for universities to receive more funding. It was developed to help focus work where it matters the most and create a brighter future for students by helping more of them achieve their dream of earning a degree. Creating a Mississippi where more adults hold at least a baccalaureate degree will improve our workforce and our economy, creating a brighter future for all of us.

Thank you for your service to our students, university and state. I hope the JSU Fall Faculty and Staff Seminar will help you feel inspired and energized to begin the new academic year with a Higher Purpose, Higher Expectations and Higher Outcomes!

Sincerely,

Greetings:

On behalf of the citizens of Jackson, it is my great pleasure to welcome you to the historical Jackson State University. I would like to welcome all new and returning faculty and staff. It is truly a blessing for you all to come together and be united as one JSU community. This academic year provides you with the opportunity to work together aiming for a higher purpose, higher expectations and higher outcomes.

The purpose of this seminar deals with issues that plague the world of academia, especially key performance indicators. Obtaining high enrollment and high graduation rates begins with a united JSU. For the city of Jackson to thrive, it remains vital that JSU continues to set the bar high and serve as a major nationally recognized urban institution. High performing institutions such as Jackson State serve as a buttress for economic development.

When competing in a globalized world, academic innovation is essential to moving our city forward. The domed stadium concept will attract many potential students, fans and tourists alike to Jackson. I look forward to working with a unified Jackson State with a higher purpose, higher expectations, and higher outcomes.

Sincerely,

Chokwe Lumumba

August 15, 2013

Greetings!

Welcome back to our "One JSU" University! Hopefully your summer break was productive, restful, and allowed an opportunity to reflect on the past academic year and prepare for the beginning of this new academic year. The theme for this Fall 2013 Seminar: "One JSU: Higher Purpose, Higher Expectations, Higher Outcomes," could not be more timely than now. We are expected to produce more, prepare better, and document our deliverables.

As you are aware, the Mississippi Institutions of Higher Learning has adopted a new funding formula for the eight public institutions. Therefore, our accountability and engagement with students to encourage and promote their success, will determine the extent to which Jackson State University is adequately funded. This is a responsibility all of us must assume: administration, faculty, staff, and the students.

Many exciting things have occurred at Jackson State University over the past year. We opened JSU Madison and enrolled students during the summer sessions at that location, we are remodeling the 101 W. Capitol building and will move two academic programs there this fall: the Department of Public Policy, and the Department of Urban and Regional Planning as well as the Mississippi Urban Research Center. Additionally, for the second year in a row, our entering first year students will be exposed to the latest technology designed to improve their learning through the i-Pad initiative. CyberLearning at Jackson State University is providing a learning centered culture of innovation and creativity to provide student learning outcomes germane to careers in the 21st century. Using mobile technology as the hub for these curricular enhancements has provided students access to the latest scholarship, on the latest technology, in an environment of "on demand", 24 hour access. A new center, the Institute for Government, has been established and will anchor the departments and serve as a hub for many governmental and public entities. It will also serve as a catalyst for our faculty and students to be more active in the public sector.

If we continue operating as One JSU, we will meet the myriad challenges facing us. I am confident of our success as we have the talent and vitality to persevere. I wish you a successful and productive academic year as we welcome back our returning students and introduce our new students to their new academic home.

Sincerely,

JACKSON STATE UNIVERSITY: HISTORY/MILESTONES

From a private church school in Natchez, Miss., with 20 newly freed slaves to a Carnegie-designated high research facility with an international enrollment approaching 9,000, Jackson State University's transformation is a testament to courage, vision and leadership.

Washington Monthly magazine annually ranks JSU among the nation's top colleges for social mobility, research and service, and it also is considered one of the top "Military Friendly Schools."

The university, accredited by the Commission of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools, offers 43 bachelor's degrees, 36 master's degrees, three specialist-in-education degrees and 11 doctoral degrees.

On a Mission

1877: Founded in Natchez, Miss., as Natchez Seminary, operating under the auspices of the American Baptist Home Mission Society of New York. Twenty newly freed slaves enroll to become ministers and teachers.

1882: Relocated to Jackson, Miss., on what is now the campus of Millsaps College. Renamed Jackson College.

1885: Construction begins on the site now home to the university's main campus.

Emerging Identity

1924: First degree awarded.

1934: American Baptist Home Mission Society withdraws support; move toward state control begins.

1940: Renamed Mississippi Negro Training School. The state Institutions of Higher Learning expands curriculum to a four-year teacher education program.

1944: Renamed Jackson College for Negro Teachers. First graduating class under state support receives bachelor of science degrees in education.

1967: Renamed Jackson State College.

1974: Renamed Jackson State University.

1979: Designated Mississippi's Urban University by the state Institutions of Higher Learning.

1990s: Schools of Social Work, Engineering, Allied Health Sciences introduced; School of Business accredited; Public Policy and Administration master's program elevated to departmental status, making it the only such department in Mississippi.

- Infrastructure growth includes the $13.5 million renovation of the H.T. Sampson Library, the $2 million restoration of historic Ayer Hall and construction to house the School of Liberal Arts.

1999: Landmark Jackson Heart Study, largest investigation of cardiovascular disease among African Americans, begins. Initially funded through a $12.9 million research grant, it receives an additional $54 million in 2005.

The New Millennium

- University's eight schools organized into five colleges: Business; Education and Human Development; Liberal Arts; Public Service; and Science, Engineering and Technology.
- e-City, an economic, housing and community development initiative, created.
- The Mississippi Learning Institute, a city-state partnership with an emphasis on math and reading, created.
- Mississippi e-Center @ JSU, a technological hub for corporate, community and academic advancement, established; housed in a $20 million facility acquired from Allstate Corp. for only $3 million.
- $200 million in construction: College of Liberal Arts, College of Business, Walter Payton Recreation and Wellness Center, Student Center, School of Engineering; new residence halls and apartments and the renovation of the Gibbs-Green Pedestrian Walkway connecting the campus and downtown Jackson.
- 2010: Civil Rights corridor established along John R. Lynch Street featuring the historic COFO Education Center and the opening of the retail and residential development One University Place.
- 2012: Launch of iPad initiative equipping freshmen with iPads to aid in learning.

JACKSON STATE UNIVERSITY

2013 FALL FACULTY AND STAFF SEMINAR

AUGUST 15-16, 2013

ONE JSU: HIGHER PURPOSE, HIGHER EXPECTATIONS, HIGHER OUTCOMES

Overview Of Why We Chose This Year's Theme:

Because a university should be a place where imagination and creative ideas flourish, this year's theme invites us to reconsider the higher education landscape in an era of increased external public scrutiny and criticism. In the most recent two decades postsecondary institutions have faced criticisms such as: the adequacy of information provided to prospective students; the appropriateness of student assessment; the relationship of tuition and fees to employment-related programs; the appropriateness of credit or clock hours to complete degree programs; fairness and equity of refund policies to protect students; the annual cost of attendance; and the quality imperative. The list goes on. The federal government has not been alone in impressing these demands. Many states have introduced "performance funding" formulas (defined for survey purposes as "special state funding tied directly to achievements of public colleges and universities on specific performance indicators") (Burke and Serban, 1997, pp. 1-3).

Both performance funding and performance budgeting focus attention (and public-funded support) on key indicators of institutional performance. Key performance indicators include such items as enrollment and graduation rates, time to degree, retention rates, effectiveness of remediation activities, transfer rates, job placement data, diversity enrollments and graduation rates, and faculty workload and productivity. All these issues face JSU today and will forever. Hence, there is a sense of urgency for us to discuss and learn collectively creative ideas and imaginative ways to do the work we profess. It all begins with ONE JSU. The historic mission of our university still remains relevant today, but our call to this mission must be driven with a higher purpose, higher expectations, and higher outcomes if we are to remain relevant, competitive, and a destination location for teaching, learning, and research.

We want to engage our JSU community at a level and show that we care deeply about what is to be learned (curriculum), how it is learned (pedagogy), who learns it (the student), the context of the learning (the student experience) and the end of the learning (search for truth). We wish to plan a two-day seminar experience that will allow all of us to recognize more deeply best practices in which we are called to orient ourselves and our students towards the future. William Bowen, president emeritus of Princeton University, writes in his latest book, Higher Education in the Digital Age, "About a third of students now take at least one class online" (p. 5). He argues these online courses—including massive open online courses and their recorded lectures—can increase productivity by leaving faculty time to do higher value tasks, including meeting with students rather than repeating stale material again and again. If one third of students are taking online courses as Bowen suggests, then the demands of current and future JSU student populations already have higher expectations and higher outcomes.

- Lawrence T. Potter, Jr., Ph.D., Co-Chair of 2013 Fall Faculty and Staff Seminar

KEYNOTE SPEAKER

CHARLIE NELMS, Ed.D.

Founding Director, Destination Graduation Initiative (DGI)

Charlie Nelms, Ed.D., has more than 40 years of experience and leadership in higher education. Currently, Nelms is launching a national initiative related to transforming Historically Black Colleges and Universities (HBCUs). Most recently, Nelms served as chancellor of North Carolina Central University (NCCU) in Durham, N.C., from 2007 to 2012. During his tenure, Nelms intensified the university's emphasis on student success, setting ambitious goals for increasing student retention and graduation rates. A few of his accomplishments included: raising the standards for undergraduate admissions and progression; guiding the establishment of the first and only Ph.D. program to be offered at NCCU in 50 years; initiating and completing a comprehensive academic program review, which led to the merging or discontinuation of more than a dozen academic programs; transitioning from NCAA Division II to Division I and membership in the Mid-Eastern Athletic Conference; and creating the Division of Research and Economic Development which assisted the university in receiving the largest sponsored research grants in the university's history (more than $100 million flowing to NCCU researchers in five years).

Under his leadership, U.S. News & World Report ranked NCCU as one of the best public HBCUs in the country for three consecutive years. In 2011, Nelms published, "A Call to Action," a policy directive intended to spur a national dialogue concerning the revitalization of the historically black colleges and universities as an important sector of American higher education. Before coming to NCCU, Nelms served as vice president for Institutional Development and Student Affairs for the Indiana University system. In 1987, Nelms began seven-year tenure as chancellor of Indiana University East, and in 1994 he was named chancellor of the University of Michigan at Flint.
